Cooke of Missouri: In the House of Representatives of the Confederate States, on the 18th of April, 1863 Wm M. Cooke, was born in Portsmouth, Va., on the 11th day of December, 1823, and was the sixth son of Mordicai Cooke, a gentleman well known in Virginia, and for many years connected with the legislation of that State. In 1843, after an attendance of three years Judge Cooke graduated at the University of Virginia, and removed to the city of St. Louis, which was then just beginning to throb with the energy of that great region, tributary with its rich and varied products to this empress of the West. Soon after taking a residence in St. Louis, he intermarried with the eldest daughter of Henry Von Phul, of that city, and in the year succeeding his marriage removed to Hannibal, Missouri, for the purpose of practising his profession. He was soon afterwards made judge of the court of common pleas, and discharged...
