By Jeff Koon

Free Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Tim Carroll (illustrator). Paperback. 160 pages. Dimensions: 7.8in. x 5.0in. x 0.6in. Americas famous teenage stalkers of stupidity are back! From the authors of You May Not Tie an Alligator to a Fire Hydrant, here is a collection of 101 of the dumbest product warnings youll ever see. The infamous 1994 McDonalds hot coffee lawsuit has spawned a veritable industry of hot warnings, from Kelloggs Pop-Tarts admonition that if pastry is overheated, frostingfilling can become extremely hot and could cause burns to the Black Cat Fireworks label: Caution: flammable. Do not put in mouth. If, on the other hand, you manage to escape the heat with a trip to the beach, be warned that a twenty-inch beach ball is NOT a lifesaving device. Kids (and maybe even parents) might be forgiven, however, for thinking that Mr. Bubbles Body Wash for Kids of All Ages would be okay to use if they missed the warning label: Caution. Keep out of reach of young children. In the brave new world of technology, users frustrated by the gobbledygook of users manuals will be relieved that their warning labels at least make sense: the Sun StarOffice End User License...
